Descriptive Series No. 2.

The Macula as seen with the Fincham Ophthalmoscope through a normal pupil. The Iris Diaphragm is closed down to reduce the field of illumination.

Note that the corneal reflex is decentred and does not interfere with the view.

The Fincham luminous Slit Ophthalmoscope with Retinoscope, combines in a compact handle all the virtues of modern instruments. The optical system assisted by an iris diaphragm decentres corneal reflections, an 8v. gas filled lamp gives a brilliant illumination, even when the nearly red free, or deficient in red discs are in use. Used as a plane mirror retinoscope the results are very definite. A May head lens battery is fitted.

Price, 8 guineas.

With Portable Resistance or Transformer,
10 guineas.
